Customer Reviews

Kindergarten-Grade 3 "Each book introduces a child who practices the faith featured. Keeping the focus on one youngster in a specific country provides a solid introduction without overwhelming readers with complex regional variations in practices and beliefs. The series is gorgeously illustrated with high-quality color photographs. All of the volumes show the children engaged in a variety of activities at home, at school, with friends and family, and practicing their religion. Words and phrases that are unique to the faith appear in bold font and are defined at greater length in the glossary. A Notes for parents and teachers section briefly describes common practices and provides information on such topics as the origins of the religion and how many people worldwide are believers. Great book and seller

Joining others in the publisher's 'A Family, A Child, A Celebration' series are three new arrivals: HINDUISM IN BALI, ISLAM IN TURKEY and BUDDHISM IN THAILAND. Each offers 32 pages including an index, glossary, and color photos of contemporary children and families, and each provides an overview of preparations for celebrations as well as a survey of basic beliefs.
