Distance Makes The Heart Grow Sick: A Book Of Postcards

Synopsis

Basking in the trenches of left over teen angst, punk rock, and brutal honesty - Cristy Road romanticizes the underdog like it's nobody's business! Here is the first collection of 5 years of her artwork featured on 90 postcards. Her work has appeared in the pages of Jane, Bitch, and Bust Magazines, as well as doing artwork for The Icarus Project, Plan-it X Records, INCITE, The Queers, Esther Bell, and other bands, books, and publications. Cristy is creating the visual voice of angry DIY punk rock youth. Featured on the Sister Spit tour.

Customer Reviews

“Chances are you’ve come across Cristy Road’s artwork but if you haven’t then you need to now! Her words are as inspiring as her illustrations. Full of inspiration, hope, and critiques on everything that needs to be dissed”; --Last Hours

Cristy C. Road is an artist, writer, publisher of Greenzine; a fanzine originally devoted to Green Day; and the author of the illustrated storybook, Indestructible. She lives in Brooklyn, New York.

Flimsy, not suitable for mailing.

I am a huge fan of Cristy Road and of her artwork and I love that this book shows so much of it but the quality of the postcards kind of suck. They aren't very thick. They're barely thicker than a normal book page. Removing them without tearing them is extremely difficult. Once removed they're so flimsy that I'm actually afraid to mail them outside of an envelope. I definitely won't be sending these internationally (which unfortunately is actually what I bought them for as I'm an avid user of the website postcrossing). So, I DEFINITELY recommend this book if you want a book that shows many examples of great artwork. I would also recommend it if you want small photos to frame for art work in your house. If you are careful removing them they would work well for that purpose. However, I do not recommend buying this book if what you want is a variety of cool artwork to mail as postcards. As postcards these are basically useless.
