Book by Hanson, Krista Finstad

About one hundred and fifty buildings likely to be of interest across the state, by NE, NW, SE, and SW, indexed by county. The book covers, mostly, edifices built as private dwellings, and, a smaller number, a few intended as public facilities from the outset, such as a jail. All of them were open to the public at the time of publishing (2000). In most cases, admission is listed as free though the compilers warn that in fact the can is rattled at most. Single color photographs taken of the exterior, no inside shots or building plans. Each entry has a description and history of four or five paragraphs.
